Early Delays Mark Registration

INTER quarter registrants bered 5,870 by 2 p.m. Wed- day as students continued to through the Smith Fieldhe under a new registration liss Crandall, dean of Ad- ions and Records, reported students in 22 of the 29 alphabetical groups had received registration packets by 2 p.m.

The one-day registration was going smoothly and rapidly, he said, although earlier in the day long lines at the treasurer's windows had bottlenecked and slowed registration machinery in the east end of the fieldhouse.

SEVERAL students complained that there was too little direction, resulting in confusion and delay. However, Dean Crandall reported that the total registration figure at 2 p.m. topped the total figure of the same time a year ago.

The primary change in the registration process this quarter was in pre-registration and advising.

STUDENTS were required to pre-register before Christmas registration and obtain registration permits in order to enter the fieldhouse Wednesday.

New students and those who did not pre-register will be registered Thursday and will be required to pay late fees

WyomingDonation Pushes Fund Over $1000 Mark

A Wyoming seminary class was the latest to join hands with the Brigham Young University Hungarian Student Committee in attempting to bring two Hungarian refugee students to BYU.

Seminary students in Afton, Wyo., read about the drive to help the Hungarian refugees in the Daily Universe, and wanted to help.

Their help came in the form of $25 which had been collected for a Christmas party, and the wish that their "hands might join the many others in a clasp of love for freedom fighters."

More than $1,000 have been collected for the Hungarian students More is needed to pay for transportation, housing and school expenses, however, said Sally Arnold, HSC co-chairman

Organizations who have not yet donated are asked to contact the Hungarian Student Committee in the Daily Universe office in the basement of the Student Service Center.

Construction Bids Open For New $4.6 Million Men's Dorm Buildings

BIDS ARE being called next month for a multi-million dollar men's housing unit at Brigham Young University.

Planned to house 1,170 men, the unit will be the first men's housing constructed on campus since Allen Hall was constructed in 1938.

Seven temporary frame structures have housed more than 300 men since 1947.

A Brigham Young Alumnus, alumni magazine, article says the estimated cost for the 6-building project is $4.6 million.

PLANS ARE available to prospective contractors from January 14 and bids due before the middle of February.

The project, which was increased from 800 accommodations to 1,170, may be only the initial step in a long-range housing development for male students on campus, the magazine quoted President Ernest L. Wilkinson as predicting.

The project will be located nearly half a mile north of the center of campus, with access roadways and sidewalks. Parking facilities are planned for each building.

THE PROJECT will consist of a central building and five dormitory-type buildings. Landscaping will provide for extensive sidewalks, planter areas, lawns, shrubbery and patios, the Alumnus reports.

"Hub" of the project will be the central building which is to house the business and feeding areas. Two large dining rooms will feed the 1,170 men living in the five dorms.

THE CENTRAL building is also the information center, and houses the offices for the manager of the project and a secretarial staff. Each student will be within an average of one-half block from the central building.

Each of the five buildings will house 234 men on a total of three floors, plus a married couple who will serve as head residents. Each building will consist of two wings, with a central living and recreation area in the center

Dancers Perform Today In Assembly

Foreign students from Brigham Young University will be featured in Thursday's student assembly, "Dance Around the World."

As opening assembly of 1957, emcees Jay Wrathall and Alyric Ray will take students on a travelogue of dance through the United States, Europe, the Orient and the Pacific Islands. Dancers from New York to Hollywood will be the Rockettes, Indians and the Ye Guys and Gals, European dancers will be the BYU Folk Dancers, the Orient will be represented by Miss Ae Suk Cha and the Kia Ora and Hawaiian clubs will represent the Pacific Islands

Buildings Get New Name Signs; Dedication Rites Being Planned

Name signs have been placed on 11 Brigham Young University campus buildings during the Christmas-holiday.

Preparations for dedication ceremonies are being planned.

Signs appearing in the buildings designate them as the Joseph F. Smith Family Living Center, the Benjamin Cluff, Jr. Botanical Laboratory, the Howard S. McDonald Student Health Center and the eight newest Heritage Hall residences—Elsie C. Carroll, Lavina C. Fugal, Susa Young Gates, Vilate M. Kimball, Emily S. Richards, Martha H. Tingey, Elizabeth Ann Whitney and Zina D. H. Young.

The Smith Family Living Center is named after the sixth president of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints. This quarter marks the first that this building has been placed in service on the campus.

Housing the university's botanical laboratories, the Cluff Botanical Laboratory is named after the second president of Brigham Young University.

He served as president, succeeding Pres. Karl G. Maeser, from Jan. 4, 1892, to Dec. 23, 1903. It was during Pres Cluff's administration that Brigham Young Academy was renamed Brigham Young University.

BYU's fifth president is the namesake of the McDonald Student Health Center.

Pres McDonald was chief administrator at BYU from July 1, 1945, to Oct. 30, 1949.

It was under his administration that Knight-Mangum Hall and the central heating plant was constructed and construction on the Eyring Science Center was begun.

The eight Heritage Halls are named after prominent women, both past and present, in the Church.

EXPRESSED DESIRE—After five years of ground duty in th U. S. Air Force, Lee Bartlett has his suppressed desire to fl fulfilled. Bartlett was one of the winners in the Deseret New recent "Suppressed Desire" contest.

New Cars, Licenses Should Be Listed

Any changes in vehicles or license numbers must be reported immediately to the Brigham Young University traffic department, according to L. E. Hulsteinson, security officer.

Any motor vehicle that is driven on campus by BYU students must be registered with the BYU Traffic Department, according to a University regulation.

Students desiring to park on campus during school hours must obtain a parking permit from the BYU Department whiche will cost $4 for the balance of the year.

Parking is prohibited on all campus roads except in marked stalls.

IOC Sets First Meeting

The first bi-weekly Inter-Organizational Council meeting for winter quarter will be held on Monday at 7 p.m. in 270 Eyring Science Center.

All club presidents or their representatives are asked to have the club publicity representative attend this meeting.

BYU Student Enters Contest; Suppressed Desire Fulfilled

A Brigham Young University student fulfilled a desire he had for five years while serving in the Air Force.

He flew!

L Lee Bartlett, a veteran of five years on ground duty in the Air Force, was winner in a contest sponsored by the Deseret News. He told the Deseret News that his suppressed desire was to fly, because he never had the opportunity while on active duty.

He was one of four to win in the annual contest.

On Dec. 18 he left the runway at Hill Air Force Base in a T-33 jet trainer, which is a modified model of the famed F-80 which saw action in Korea.

Bartlett covered more th 400 miles during his hou flig The jet was piloted by Lt Wi sam B. Boyd, Det 1, 2346th Reserve Flying Center.

"Real Smooth," he said as stepped from the plane "T roughest part was on the w way."

Decked out in regulation ing squirmsuit, including oxy mask, helmet and coveralls, B tled left the ground at noon.

The flight covered most Utah County, home of the B student. They cruised at 15, feet.

For a short period during flight, Bartlett took controls the jet. He said he received ing lessons at the age of 15 s small Piper Cub, but never f in the "bigger ones."

While in the Air Force, he s viced the type of plane he f in. He was an aircraft mechs during his tour of duty.

Constant Vigil In Matching Colors Urged

MADISON, Wis., (IG)—Women should watch the colors of their accessories, and how they use them with an outfit.

According to a University of Wisconsin clothing specialist, bright colors call attention to size and to any figure fault. So a woman with large hips should keep away from a bright red handkerchief dangling from a pocket or belt near the hip.

However, says Helen Pearson, bright colors in accents help a short woman. She said "color emphasis at the neck or in a hat will make a short person look taller."

A single spot of a color has a "lonesome look," said the clothing expert, so it is better to have two articles the same color. A red hat and purse or scarf for a single navy suit, for example.

Miss Pearson recommends that women have three sets of accessories to change the appearance of a basic suit or dress that is neither dressy nor sporty but, "in between."

Cowboy Coach May Leave For Midwest

University of Wyoming football coach Phil Dickens may soon be heading for the Big Ten Conference, according to a national news service release.

Indiana University has a head football coaching vacancy to fill, and Dickens' name is on the school's list of candidates. Possibly several other universities have their eye on the man that has led Wyoming's Cowboys to 18 victories in their last 21 games, including a 21-14 win over Texas Tech in last year's Sun Bowl game.

Long considered one of the doormats of the Big Ten, Indiana is no doubt anxious to land a coach with winning ways, and Dickens' record speaks for itself. In 10 years of coaching the Wyoming mentor has racked up a respectable 69-27-5 record.

Since coming to Wyoming in 1953 Dickens' football clubs have won 29 games, lost 11 and tied 1. This year the Pokes ended up with an undefeated, untied record.

Skyline Casaba Wars Get Underway Tonight

SEVEN Skyline Conference basketball teams will start playing for the league crown this week, with only Denver University, one of the pre-season favorites, idle.

Utah State will host the University of Utah in the game that kicks off the league play Thursday night. One of the oldest rivalries in the conference, the Aggies and the Redskins will tangle at 8 p.m. with the Utes slated as the team to win.

FRIDAY night Provo fans will see Brigham Young University take on Montana, and Wyoming meet the Lobos of New Mexico at Albuquerque.

Wyoming, figured in the pre-season polls as one of the teams to finish up close to first place, if not in the number one spot, should win out over New Mexico.

Saturday night action finds Colorado A&M joining in the fray when they meet New Mexico, and the Grizzlies leaving Provo to test Utah State.

BY CHECKING the records of BYU and Utah in the tournaments the two teams took part in, both squads should be put in the favorite role in their games this weekend.

Both the Utes and the Cougars ended up winning in the consolation round of their tournaments, and returning to the Skyline area with very respectable pre-conference records.

Utah dropped their opener to the Dixie Classic to North Carolina, second ranked team in the nation. The Utes came back strong in the next two games to sew up third place.

BYU's under-rated Cougar squad went into their opening game in the Holiday Festival tournament with St. Johns University, and declared an upset the Redmen 89-75.

Notre Dame caught the Cougars off-balance in their next game, and handed Coach Watts' team a resounding 91-66 drubbing. However, the Cats bounced back to hand Ohio State an 84-76 decision and finish in third spot.

THE CATS will enter the game with Montana Friday evening with a 6-5 win-loss record. After losing four of their first five games this season the Cougars bounced back strong and have gained in experience and have succeeded to rack up five wins out of six starts.

At present, the favorites to win the Skyline laurels for the season are BYU, Utah and Wyoming, with Denver playing the role of the dark horse.

However, the Skyline Conference is noted for the top brand of basketball played in this area, and the league race could blow wide open by mid-season.
